BUILDING CAPACITY

Making Writing Manageable

To accelerate learning and performance across all metrics, every teacher needs to be a teacher of writing. Literacy is a school-wide effort at Wilson High School.

As discussed at our PD sessions, revision and publishing is an important part of the writing process. Kelly Gallagher is a renowned high school teacher and writing expert that offers practical and effective practices to get students writing daily, while keeping the grading load manageable for teachers. One such practice is the STAR Revision method. Click to the image to learn more.

STAR Revision
Substitute	Take things out	Add	Rearrange
Overused words Weak verbs with strong verbs Weak adjectives with strong adjectives "Dead" words Words that are not specific Sentences that are unclear	Unnecessary repetitions Unimportant or irrelevant information Parts that might belong in another piece	Detail New information Figurative language Descriptive adjectives and adverbs Development Clarification of meanings Expanded ideas Specific language techniques	The sequence to produce a desired effect The order for a more logical flow Sentence structure So details support main ideas
Have you met your writing target(s) from your previous work? Have you checked for any simple errors in spelling and punctuation?

FAMILY, STAFF AND COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

Mule Closet Connects School and Community

The culmination for many years of work, the Wilson Mule Closet was officially inaugurated at a Ribbon Cutting Ceremony on Friday, November 18th. After words from Ms. Seamans, and the amazing Parent Center Staff, Ms. Gutierrez-Aviles did the honors of cutting the ribbon just moments after learning that the Mule Closet has been dedicated to her, as the originator of the vision for a space on campus where students and families in need can come to have their needs met, with respect and dignity. That's the Wilson way.

Grand opening of the Mule Closet! Integrated Student Support for our Mighty Mules ❤️
